Sentenced for Wife Beating.

Miles Hill, colored, separated from his wife in this city about twelve years ago. He went away and had not returned to the home until April 4 last. He returned about midnight and after repeated poundings on the door he was let in by his wife. He stayed there that night. Apparently the altercation of twelve years ago could not be settled in a night, and on that night the prodigal husband used some rough arguments on his wife.

The wife made a strong statement of her injuries on that night, received at the hands of her husband, and how her cheer at her better half's return was suddenly gone. The judge considered the case of wife-beating serious and imposed a sentence of $50 fine or 180 days in jail.
